Dining With The Edinburgh Residence

The Edinburgh Residence, discretely located in Rothesay Terrace in Edinburgh's West End, has introduced two new dining experiences.

The first is its own fine dining/informal restaurant, Number Seven, where diners can enjoy a mouth-watering menu specially created by John Rutter. Examples of the menu include a delicious organic chicken, wild mushroom terrine, sourdough and red onion jam to start, followed by succulent Char-Grilled Rib of beef, olive potato crush, café de Paris butter.

The luxuriant surroundings and relaxed atmosphere make this restaurant the perfect place to spend the summer evenings.

Number Seven is open seven days, with special offers that includes two courses for £21.50 per person and three courses for £27.50 per person.

For those diners who'd prefer the five star experience in their own home or office, then the Edinburgh Residence Outside Catering is the perfect option. This new service offers stress free entertaining and caters for everything from private family occasions to board lunches or canapé receptions – from crockery, glassware and linen to the mouth-watering menu.

The Edinburgh Residence's Outside Catering could not be easier. All you have to do is choose your selection from the specially created selector menus – prices start from £7 for continental breakfast; £7.50 for lunch; and £9 for Afternoon Tea. All the chef asks is that clients give at least 24 hours notice.

Alternatively, if it's a special occasion and you'd like some advice then a complimentary consultation is advised.
